

BOOK FAIR (P1-P5)

Gyaan Bharati School recently organized a book fair in their premises. The fair was held on 15th April and was open to the parents and their child. The fair aimed to promote reading culture among children and adults, and it was a great success.

Eureka Book Store and Pratham Book Store were the two major participants in the fair. They had set up their stalls with a variety of books for all ages, including storybooks, academic books, self-help books, and many more. The stalls were beautifully decorated with posters and banners that showcased the latest books and bestsellers. The staff at the stalls were very knowledgeable and provided useful recommendations to the visitors.

The fair had an extensive collection of books from different genres, and visitors had plenty of options to choose from. Many parents and children visited the fair, and it was heartening to see the interest they had in books. The fair had organized various activities for the children, such as storytelling, book reading, and quizzes. These activities were well-received and provided an enjoyable experience for the young ones.

Overall, the book fair was a grand success. It helped inculcate the love for reading among the visitors and provided a platform for the book enthusiasts to explore new books and interact with fellow readers. The organizers deserve credit for putting up such a well-organized event, and the participants should be commended for their contribution. We hope to see many more such events in the future that promote reading culture in our community.
